ANOTHER BIG TRIP.

Capt. Solomon Jacobs Landed a Big Fare of Mackerel at Boston Today.

The steamer Alice M. Jacobs, Capt. Solomon Jacobs arrived at Boston today with 40,000 fresh mackerel and 80 barrels of salt mackerel.

Fresh mackerel were sold at 10 cents right through.

AT BOSTON.

Three Seiners Have Good Fresh Mackerel Fares.

Fish Are on Georges and Wild as Hawks.

Three good mackerel trips is the story at Boston today. Sch. Edna Wallace Hopper has 15,000 fresh mackerel in count and 200 barrels salt mackerel. Sch. Grayling has 9000 fresh mackerel in count and 120 barrels of salt mackerel. She also has five barrels of fresh takers. Sch. Norumbega has 5000 fresh mackerel in count.

Sch. Navahoe, Capt. Martin Welsh, arrived Sunday after a long cruise for mackerel. If there is a mackerel haunt east of the South Shoal lightship that the Navahoe has not been on this cruise, it isn't charted.

First Capt. Welch had a look in the Bay of Fundy, found nothing, and swung her off for North Bay. Here no schools were seen, but the boats were jigging and netting mackerel.

Leaving there and coming towards home no fish were seen along the Cape Shore, off Cape Sable or on Brown's Bank. Schools were plenty on Georges, but it was next to impossible to catch them, they were so wild.

Sch. Hattie M. Graham, Capt. John S. Seavey, arrived from Georges this morning with a fine fare of 270 barrels salt mackerel. Capt. Seavey has, as usual, done well.

Pacific Coast Halibut Prices.

The price of halibut is ranging as high as 3 1-2 cts in the Seattle market at the present time, the highest it has been this year, and a combination of circumstances has resulted in an unusually exciting race against time with the few loaded schooners coming in to reach the market first and get the benefit of advance. During the past few days tugs have been sent out toward the straits in several instances to tow the slow-sailing schooners into port. The prize which fell to the first vessels arriving with full cargoes was of sufficient importance to warrant the expenses of tugs.

It is unusual how the supply of halibut ran short. Two months ago there were thirty schooners in the fleet fishing off the Cape Flattery banks where there are now only eight vessels continuing in the trade. The remainder had withdrawn to engage in salmon fishing. Then there came rough weather, which depleted the supply, and the price of halibut rose from less than one cent a pound to more than three cents a pound. The supply is still short and the lucky owners of vessels which still remain in the fleet are reaping a rich harvest as a result of their action.

And the strangest thing is that the supply of salmon is more than plentiful, so the vessels which left the halibut banks to engage in salmon fishing are obtaining but small returns for their catches. It is one of the interesting changes of luck which surrounds the fisherman in his occupation.—Seattle Times.

THE IRISH MACKEREL FISHERY.

Some Places It Has Been a Failure While at Others the Best for Years.

The TIMES correspondent at Skibber, Ireland, dated July 19, states that the Irish spring mackerel fishing is over and only about 1000 barrels were cured for the American market. The western coast of Ireland Kerry and Galway has been a complete failure, but at Baltimore the fishing was the best for the past ten years.

The mackerel have been from 30 to 60 miles off shore all the year, and have never come in close to the land as usual, and they have been about four weeks later in spawning than previous years.

Fine Halibut Fare.

Sch. Emma and Helen, Capt. William Hermon, arrived this morning from the Labrador coast with a fine fare, 48,000 pounds of halibut.
